KUDOKE
— GERMAN WATCHMAKING —

In 2019 Christopher Daaboul of EsperLuxe first met with Stefan Kudoke at Baselworld's dedicated AHCI (Académie Horlogère des Créateurs Indépendants) space. There was so much to love about Stefan's work - strong German watchmaking aesthetic and high quality craftsmanship at great prices. So immediately Chris knew this was a perfect match for EsperLuxe in line with the philosophy of promoting boutique and independent watchmaking.

18 months later, Kudoke and EsperLuxe are proud to unveil an exclusive collaboration: The Kudoke 2 Grüner Wald Sonderedition (Green Forest Special Edition).

The name for this Esperluxe exclusive relates to the dial's color, a deep textured green inspired by Stefan's forest surroundings in the German watchmaking haven of Saxony. But more than dial color variation, this special edition is really about the watchmaker's specialty: hand-engraving.

While understated, the dial features a frosted green that can be described as a deep teal color. It is grained to achieve a coarser texture that reflects beautifully in various lighting.

The Grüner Wald also features the unusual and quite creative, mirror polished, infinity-symbol hour hand accompanying a raised chapter ring for the minutes.

The timepiece retains the eye-catching design emblem of the Kudoke 2: its day-night indicator at 12 o'clock. It's a stunning visual highlighted by the domed disk with hand-engraved gold plating to represent the day, and white and black rhodium for night.

If the dial side of KUDOKÉ 2 represents more subtlety and elegance, the caseback displays the overt look of artisanal craftsmanship.

Stefan's first in-house caliber, KALIBER 1, is used in the KUDOKÉ 2, and makes its link to 19th century, English pocket watches with gilded bridges and a large, hand-engraved balance cock across the center of the movement.

Accompanying the floral engraving work is the "Sonderedition" designation as special edition in German, along with the plaque indicating the limited "one of ten" description. Lastly, a subtle EL is hand-engraved representing EsperLuxe branding.

The KUDOKE 2 Grüner Wald Sonderedition is a special edition of 10 pieces available exclusively from EsperLuxe delivering November 2020.
